The countless pasta shapes and the flavours of accompanying sauces have evolved over centuries (from around 1271 A.D.), moulded by Italian society and its regions through the passing down of recipes from mother to daughter. In the south semolina dough is shaped by hand, while the central areas opt for the silky smoothness of dough made with eggs, mirroring the richness of the landscape from the picturesque Tuscan hills to the ancient sites of Rome. The best flavour comes from cooking the pasta with just the right amount of salt in plenty of boiling water allowing it to swim freely until it's al dente.

There's an art to choosing the right pasta for the right sauce; the twisted shape of casarecce marries well with pesto, long ribbons of pappardelle can stand up to hearty meat-based sauces, while ravioli with its flavoursome filling can be simply served with a light butter sauce.

Pasta dishes

I Homemade tomato sauce with freshly chopped basil (radiatori) vegan £8 with buffalo mozzarella DOP - add £2

"Originally eaten beneath Capri's blue sky, this dish oozes with the spirit and taste of the Amalfi coast"

II Homemade pistachio and basil pesto with sautéed cherry tomatoes (casarecce) vegan £9.5

"A vegan Sicilian twist on our creamy green Genovese pesto"

III Homemade creamy walnut sauce with chestnut mushrooms (casarecce) v £10.5

"The Liguria region in north-western Italy gave birth to salsa di noci, direct from its rich and fertile soil, translating into creamy simplicity"

IV Truffled Cacio e Pepe (casarecce) £11

"This delicate twist on one of the most ancient dishes of traditional Roman cuisine adds truffle notes to the simple creamy and peppery sauce."

V Smoked salmon (or pancetta) carbonara with pecorino DOP and beaten eggs (bucatini) £13 (£11.5)

"Although the origins of this classic are hazy, with carbonaro translating as charcoal burner, it is believed that the lush creaminess of this filling dish fuelled hungry workers"

VI 4 hour slow cooked béchamel bolognese with grated parmesan* (pappardelle) £12.5

"Hailing from Imola, a town located on the Santerno River to the west of Bologna, pappardelle al ragù is a slow-cooked meat sauce"

VII Homemade basil pesto with grated parmesan* (casarecce) £12

"Genoa in northern Italy is home to this intense and deliciously fragrant sauce"

VIII Handmade ravioli with high welfare 100% grass-fed lamb, parsley and parmesan* in a light butter & sage sauce £13

"A delicate combination of lamb and herbs from the Emilia-Romagna region"

When we say parmesan, we always mean Parmigiano Reggiano DOP
